

FBI

First Biomedical, Inc.

For Immediate Release

Glenn Friendt, Director of Marketing
First Biomedical, Inc.
800-658-5582

First Biomedical, Inc. Merges with InfuSystem

Olathe, Kansas – June 23, 2010 – First Biomedical, Inc. announced today that it has merged with InfuSystem, effective June 15th. Both companies look forward to increased buying power and access to more products, more widespread service and repair capabilities, and enhanced customer service.

First Biomedical, Inc. rents, leases, sells, services and repairs preowned and new infusion pumps, serving more than 1,500 customers across the United States and Canada. Founded in 1998 by Tom Creal and Dan Wassall, the company quickly earned a reputation for providing quality equipment serviced by expert technicians, competitive rates and turnaround times, and unparalleled customer service. First Biomedical has focused on building strong partnerships in the industry and continuing to provide personal, flexible service as the company grew.

Tom Creal, who will continue as President of First Biomedical, said, “I’m excited to be joining forces with InfuSystem. InfuSystem has a strong reputation and reach within the oncology market. With our extensive selection of over 70 different makes and models of infusion pumps, as well as our biomedical service and repair expertise, the combined companies, create a formidable offering for the entire alternate site market.” Mr. Creal added, “Together we anticipate having greater buying power to enable us both to maintain competitive pricing in this ever-fluctuating market.”

Sean McDevitt, Chairman and CEO of InfuSystem, said, “First Biomedical has an outstanding reputation within the industry. By combining these two best-in-class operations we are able to continue to respond to customer and market demands even more efficiently.” Mr. McDevitt added, “The First Biomedical business represents a great strategic fit for InfuSystem, that will allow us to expand our offerings to existing customers with the addition of biomedical service and repair. Simultaneously we will be able to bolster our growing infusion pump sales efforts within the oncology space and beyond.”

First Biomedical will operate as a wholly owned subsidiary, managed by its current in-house leadership team. First Biomedical will continue to sell, rent, lease, service and repair preowned and new infusion pumps and other medical devices, at all of its current locations in Olathe, Kansas, Mississauga, Ontario, and Santa Fe Springs, California. All addresses, phone and fax numbers, email addresses and company contact persons will remain the same. First Biomedical is focused on maintaining and improving its quick turnaround time, top-notch quality infusion pumps and superior customer service.

InfuSystem is a leading supplier of ambulatory infusion pumps and related services in the outpatient oncology industry. The company serves more than 1,300 customers across the United States, more than any other company in its industry, and administers 250 managed care contracts to cover 195 million lives. Headquartered in Madison Heights, Michigan, and founded in 1987, InfuSystem is a publicly traded company (OTCBB:INHI) that employs 120 employees in the area.

###